

The gateway to amazing Israeli artists

Established in 1993 by Sharon & Gadi Eisner, Is Art is one of the leading distributorships of high-end, artistic jewelry, religious items, and gifts created by Israeli Artists in the United States today.

While the popularity of Is Art's collections can be attributed to the skill of the designers, their loyal customer base stems from the company's personal integrity, credibility and from the belief in outstanding customer service and high-quality products. Is Art jewelry and Judaica is currently found in galleries, museum stores, mail order catalogues, boutiques and specialty stores nationwide.

Ayala Bar -

Intricate jewelry masterpieces

The materials - fabrics, simple metals, glass beads, mineral stones and crystal rhinestones - are used to translate her creative perceptions into intricate patterns with a thousand messages. That is why every woman finds her own special radiance and very personal signature in this jewelry. Ayala draws on her experience as a costume jeweler, and her eclectic career in theater and interior design.

Seeka -

High-tech meets fine art

The Hebrew meaning of Seeka is "Pin" or "Brooch." Nachshon Peleg and Stavit Allweis marry complementary skills from the fields of Industrial Design and Fine Art to create their one of a kind works of art. Utilizing a proprietary technique, they mate stainless steel, resin and found objects in combination with hand-painted acrylics to create each piece of jewelry and Judaica.

Talma Keshet -

Jewelry highlighting nature

Talma's creations are influenced by the natural environment, bringing harmony between the wearer and her world. She utilizes sterling silver and 9kt gold set with semi-precious gemstones accented with flowers, leaves and little hearts.
